You will not be graded on colour psychology or other subjective choices. Again, just try your best.	0	----
Images
☐ Students must provide a license and source for each image used in their design as part of their text document. Do not use your own photography. You must use images that come with a license. Understanding the license is key here.	1	I used image that come with license in the pdf file name is "Final Assignment, Desktop View & Mobile View with Gallery-02", license number is 1257657626 from the site: https://www.istockphoto.com/photo/university-of-alberta-edmonton-canada-dentistry-and-pharmacy-building-gm1257657626-368654108
☐ At least 1 image should be used	1	Yes, I did
☐ Colours found in images should loosely match with the colour palette used in the website.	1	Yes, I did
☐ If the student chooses to take advantage of leading lines, framing devices, cropping, or any other compositional features in the image then they should explain which techniques they are using and the intended effect in their writeup. eg: "On my landing page I am using the leading lines of the highway to point the user's eye towards our subscribe button because this button is the most important part of my design and I want it to attract the most attention."	1	In here, I would like to say regarding "Menu bar" on my landing page to attract most to the user.
Conventions and heuristics
☐ Don't do anything weird. Don't put your login button at the bottom of the page or anything like that. If I find something unusual, confusing, or weird then I will dock this point.	1	Yes, you'll find those are on right place.

☐ Be consistent. Logos, navigation links, login buttons etc. should appear in the same positions from page to page. Buttons should have the same shapes and styles.	1	Yes, you'll find those are on right place.
☐ You must use at least 1 of the 8 Golden Rules or 10 Nielsen Heuristics and you must be sure to write a bit about it in the written document as it may be missed (good design is often invisible so be sure to show off your good decisions).	1	I used in here "Strive for Consistency" from Schneiderman's Eight Golden Rules of Interface design, used in here familiar icons, colours, menu hierarchy, also used in here "User control and freedom" from Heuristics for User Interface design for user friendly or easy to use for anyone.
Miscellaneous	1
☐ Include at least three pen and paper sketches in your written document.	1	Yes, I did, please find in below.
☐ Written document must have the name of the student, title of website, title of course, and the submission date.	1	Yes, I did.
☐ All written material - in your document and in your prototype- must be spell-checked and grammar checked.	1	Yes, I did. It's all correct.
